Broken by the legacy of colonialism, Lakota Tribes struggle for restoration, healing, and rebuilding. This film is a conversation between the elder and younger generations about reclaiming their stories and culture. By looking at traditional family structure, spirituality, language and values, they hope to build a vision for the future.

Reflecting on a history of systematic cultural destruction, see the resilience and profound healing taking place amongst Midwestern Tribal people. By reclaiming their spiritual and cultural identity, they are using ancestral teachings to foster diversity and creativity, as well as initiate social change.

Across the Creek (approx. 30 min.)

Horse Tribe (approx. 60 min.)

LaDonna Harris: Indian 101 (approx. 60 min.)

Our Fires Still Burn: The Native American Experience (approx. 60 min.)

Spirit in Glass: Plateau Native Beadwork (approx. 30 min.)

Watchers of the North (approx. 30 min./episode)

LaDonna Harris reshaped Indian Country both in America and abroad. A Comanche from Oklahoma, she helped convince the Nixon administration to return sacred land to the Taos Pueblo Indians of New Mexico, founded the Americans for Indian Opportunity in 1970, and became a vice-presidential nominee in 1980.

Celebrating the spectacular beadwork and culture of the Columbia River Plateau People through the eyes and hearts of the artists. Together, they share their history, motivation, and the beadwork that plays an important role in binding their culture together.

This action-packed 6-part documentary series follows the Canadian Rangers in the most remote areas of the Arctic. Their job? To offer a military-like presence by serving as first responders in surveillance, patrol, and scouting. Professionally trained and certified, they are the experts that Regular Forces turn to when in need of survival skills in the unforgiving Arctic.