Vision, Mission and Values

Adopted at the 2006 NEA Representative Assembly

The National Education Association

We, the members of the National Education Association of the United States, are the voice of education professionals. Our work is fundamental to the nation, and we accept the profound trust placed in us.

Our Vision

Our vision is a great public school for every student.

Our Mission

Our mission is to advocate for education professionals and to unite our members and the nation to fulfill the promise of public education to prepare every student to succeed in a diverse and interdependent world.

Our Core Values

These principles guide our work and define our mission:

Equal Opportunity. We believe public education is the gateway to opportunity. All students have the human and civil right to a quality public education that develops their potential, independence, and character.

A Just Society. We believe public education is vital to building respect for the worth, dignity, and equality of every individual in our diverse society.

Democracy. We believe public education is the cornerstone of our republic. Public education provides individuals with the skills to be involved, informed, and engaged in our representative democracy.

Professionalism. We believe that the expertise and judgment of education professionals are critical to student success. We maintain the highest professional standards, and we expect the status, compensation, and respect due all professionals.

Partnership. We believe partnerships with parents, families, communities, and other stakeholders are essential to quality public education and student success.

Collective Action. We believe individuals are strengthened when they work together for the common good. As education professionals, we improve both our professional status and the quality of public education when we unite and advocate collectively.
The Need for a Distinctive Leadership Brand

As public education continues to transform, so will the role of educators. The National Education Association (NEA) recognizes that education leaders are making, and will face, some of the toughest decisions in the history of our Association and public education. The Association must continue to strategically use its resources to invest in educators by providing opportunities that increase their awareness and understanding of their role as leaders. Educators who see themselves as leaders, whether in their Association or profession, are a necessity. Further, NEA believes that investing in the development of great leaders is a powerful and essential investment.

Recognizing the need and the urgency, NEA engaged leaders across the Association to discuss the current and desired future state of NEA’s leadership development. NEA also established a leadership development advisory team, consisting of governance, member and staff leaders to review member input and ideas across the NEA, to develop a common vision for what NEA leaders should know and be able to do. It is out of this work that the NEA Leadership Competencies were born.

Revised in 2017-18, the current NEA Leadership Competency framework seeks to describe the ‘NEA leader’ of the 21st century. These competencies, updated by practitioners and staff, offer a more unified and interdisciplinary approach to leadership development, with particular attention on expanding the competencies to include skills that can position educators to address systemic problems, like institutional racism. In fact, some of the revisions explicitly reference the intersection of race, social justice, and policies and practices, on students and public education. Other times, you will notice that the knowledge, skills, and abilities listed in a competency include developing the leaders’ ability to apply their knowledge of these intersections to assess current, public practices and policies, as well as organizational practices, and their impact on equity. NEA believes that these conversations and skills are paramount and necessary for every educator.

Every aspect of the Association plays some role in leadership development, making it even more important to have a common vision and understanding of what we are collectively working toward. That common vision is establishing a distinctive leadership brand that is defined by the NEA Leadership Competency framework. No longer are educators left to wonder what it takes to be a leader.

Purpose

The framework is based on a belief that educators are leaders. A second belief is that educators need a unique set of leadership competencies that will assist them in multiple areas, but specifically in leading their Associations and in their professions. With this framework, NEA has defined what it means to be a “NEA leader” through the development of a series of six leadership competency domains. While NEA continues to invest in specialized leadership development opportunities for specific membership categories and roles, these leadership competencies are intended for the benefit of all current and emerging leaders, regardless of role, level, or experience. The competencies are designed to prepare NEA members to lead relevant, thriving Associations and become world-class education leaders in their professions. The competency domains are interconnected. Together, the competency domains present a well-rounded picture of the knowledge, skills, and abilities NEA believes equips educators to lead and create the systemic change in public education.

The Promise of Leadership

When the NEA Leadership Competency framework was created, leadership development was viewed as being part of individual programs or as a conference or event. Leadership was also used to describe only those individuals who held an elected position in the Association. Since the initial development of the framework, those views have changed and continue to change. Leadership development is viewed not only as an organizational priority, it is becoming widely understood that it is an essential component of enhancing organizational capacity and necessary for any educator who desires to be an exceptional practitioner.

As such, leadership development is not the responsibility of a singular department or program, but is something that must be understood, prioritized, and viewed similarly throughout the NEA enterprise.
Leadership development at NEA is now evolving to have its own language and standards, its own following, and brand. More and more, leadership development is being defined as a journey, not as episodic events. More importantly, the definition of leadership is expanding and changing. Leadership is no longer necessarily defined by an elected role or position, but by key characteristics, actions and influences used to lead within and beyond the Association and in the education profession.

The catalyst for this change is a new set of NEA leadership competencies that encourage and support the leadership of self, the leadership of others, and the leadership of the Association.

Leadership of Self (Foundational)

The value and need for personal growth and development is important as you think of your leadership journey. Every one of us has a compelling leadership journey. We have all made choices that have shaped our life's path including: how we respond to success and failure, whether or not to take on leadership roles, and ability or inability to take risks. We all have stories and experiences that have shaped our leadership journey.

As you lead yourself – you should consider self-reflection, evolution and responsibility as a means to regularly check-in with yourself to monitor your motives for leading. You should engage in activities that help to grow and refine your leadership acumen and abilities. In addition, you must have a willingness to act and conduct yourself and the business of the Association with integrity and character.

Leadership of Others (Mobilizing and Power-Building)

A critical part of unleashing your own leadership potential is the ability to unleash the leadership potential in others. A leader demonstrates attributes and behaviors that capture the hearts and minds of people and inspire them to follow and to lead. Leading others enables us to activate our leadership capacity. Leading others is a way to demonstrate our shared values, experiences, and why we do what we do.

Understanding that no one gets here alone, it is important that you develop and work with others in order to reproduce leadership. Leaders help others to grow as they inspire and equip them to lead in their everyday lives. Leaders foster the need for respectful and collegial relationships within and outside of the NEA and mentor current and aspiring leaders so that they, in turn, can go on to be leaders.

Leadership of the Organization (Agenda-Driving)

How do we transform the present Association into one that is prepared to handle the successes and challenges we face now and in the future? What are the critical systems that must be developed?

In order to address these critical questions and others, the Association requires agenda-driving leaders. Their actions and those they lead are driven by the Association’s mission, vision, and core values. Agenda-driving leaders create and monitor internal systems, structures and processes that enhance organizational capacity. They lead themselves and others to develop strategy and take ownership for identifying, addressing, and creating solutions to systemic problems. Agenda-driving leaders understand transformational change, within the organization and within the context of broader systems.

The NEA Leadership Competency Framework Explained

The leadership development competency framework reflects the NEA strategic framework and was developed through multiple leader and member engagements, interviews, focus groups, and a review of benchmark models in union, public sector and corporate environments. These competencies define for our Association what leaders should know and be able to do in the domains of advocacy, communications, governance and leadership, organizing, professional practice, and strategy and fiscal health. Leadership development is not a linear process. As such, it is quite possible for an educator to be Foundational in one competency and Agenda-Driving in another. Likewise, members may focus on one competency and achieve modest growth before switching to focus on another competency. The key is that members are aware of their level of competency and have a plan for strengthening their leadership, with an eye toward learning how to effectively lead others and the Association. This is the power and usefulness of this framework.
The framework has the following essential elements.

✪ Six Competency Domains: the core functions of the Association that support professional practice. Each competency has a definition that explains the overarching purpose, goal and objectives of the competency.

✪ Key Themes: under each competency there are multiple themes that convey the topic areas the competency addresses.

✪ Proficiency Progression: (labels adapted from language shared by the AFL-CIO): progressions convey a brief profile of the leader and their capabilities as they grow. They include Foundational (leading of self), Mobilizing and Power-Building (leading others) and Agenda-Driving (leading the organization).

✪ Behaviors: how leaders demonstrate the competency at increasing levels of proficiency.

✪ Essential Program/Training Considerations: not intended to be exhaustive or prescriptive, but provide a suggested approach, and in some cases, examples of what could be included in a training or program to help members develop the knowledge, skills, and abilities as outlined in the progression level.

Ideas for Using the Leadership Competencies

The competencies are a vehicle to support continuous learning and are intended to be broadly applicable across the organization for individuals, locals, affiliates, and NEA. The competencies are very robust and are not meant to be completed over the course of a single event or a single year. The competencies support the notion that leadership development is a journey, not an event. The competencies serve as a guide and a tool to show what Association leaders should know and be able to do over the course of their careers in order to lead thriving, relevant organizations and to lead in their professions.

Below are some activities that may be considered across the NEA enterprise and at all levels.

✪ Endorse, adopt or customize the NEA Leadership Competency framework to create or enhance state and local leadership development systems and programs. Help bring a greater alignment of leadership development goals across the enterprise.

✪ Assess your leadership proficiency across competencies at many points throughout your leadership journey. NEA has developed self-assessments, which can be accessed, along with other resources at www.nea.org/leadershipdevelopment.

✪ Develop a plan for your leadership development, see Leadership Development Guide template on page 23.

✪ Seek out leadership opportunities within your profession that allow you to exercise the competencies.

✪ Identify knowledge, skills and attributes (abilities) needed for a particular leadership role or assignment. Consider questions such as:

  - What leadership strengths can I build on through the competencies?
  - What leadership challenges can I improve through the competencies?
Where To Turn for Leadership Development Resources

www.nea.org/leadershipdevelopment

Log on and find resources and programs through the leadership development resources site to access these and other resources to support you in your leadership journey.

Leadership Competencies Self-Assessment(s)

The NEA Leadership Competency Self-Assessment was designed to help NEA leaders identify their own areas of strength, as well as areas where they can improve. Individuals are strongly encouraged to engage the self-assessments as often as they like or need to identify the areas in which they want to grow.

NEA National Leadership Summit

The National Leadership Summit is NEA’s premier leadership experience. It is designed to challenge your thinking, your method of doing business, and deepen your understanding of ways to enhance your individual and organizational capacity. The goal is to create an experience that deepens your understanding of what the NEA believes are the knowledge, skills and abilities every educator needs to lead with vision, purpose, and action.

Personal Leadership Development Guide (Template)

The Personal Leadership Development Guide (Template) is intended for individual educators who are curious about their leadership and are ready to start their journey toward self-awareness to become stronger Association leaders (elected and non-elected) and stronger professionals.

Teacher Leadership Competencies

The NEA Teacher Leadership competencies, developed for the Teacher Leadership Institute, are a resource for identification, reflection, guidance, and inspiration for classroom practitioners. The NEA Leadership Competency Framework was used in the development of these competencies which can be used as guideposts for professional growth.

Education Support Professional (ESP) Professional Growth Continuum

The PGC serves as a ‘map’ of how Education Support Professionals (ESP) can grow professionally, by bridging the gap between current practice and a vision for a system of support that recognizes ESP as vital partners in student success. The NEA Leadership Competency Framework serves as a foundation for, and aligns with, the PGC to define for ESP the competencies they need to begin to accelerate their professional growth.

Step 1: Develop an Understanding of the NEA Leadership Competency Framework

Read the NEA Leadership Competency Framework guide in its entirety.

Goal: Develop an awareness of each competency and how each can support you in your growth.

Demonstrate Your Awareness

Document how you believe the competency framework can assist you and others.

________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________

Step 2: Self-Assessment

It is through a deep understanding of yourself as a leader, using the competency framework as a guide, that you will become aware of the knowledge, skills, and abilities you have and those that need developing. After reviewing the framework, educators are encouraged to complete the leadership competency self-assessments at www.nea.org/leadershipdevelopment, and record their scores to use as a baseline for measuring growth over time.

Goal: Assess your leadership and begin to identify growth goals.

Note: It is recommended that educators view the corresponding module for each self-assessment.

Self-Assessment Scorecard

Record each competency and overall score.

Step 3: Identifying Leadership Goals

After the self-assessment, reflect on why, how, and where you aspire to lead, select a competency(ies) on which to focus.

Goal: To establish an articulated focus that is grounded in the competencies and outlines the knowledge, skills, and abilities you want to strengthen.

Consider the following guiding questions as you begin to articulate your leadership development focus.

- What competencies will you target for development?
- Why is this area of growth (competency) meaningful?
- Where do you fall along the progression continuum?
- Where do you intend to go?
- How does the identified area of growth align with your personal goals? How will you use the skill to lead others and the organization?
- How will your growth impact the needs of students, colleagues, your school/district, worksite or campus, and your community?

Articulate Your Focus

After contemplation of the above questions, articulate your leadership development growth focus using the grid below.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Identify the competency(ies)</th>
<th>Choose competency theme(s)</th>
<th>Identify your current progression level for each theme</th>
<th>Use the progression levels to identify the behaviors you aspire to develop</th>

Step 4: Working Toward Your Goal

Identify and keep track of how you plan to develop the knowledge, skills, and abilities to reach your goal(s); be specific and include dates for each activity and date of anticipated completion. Your action plan will not only clarify the growth you are making, but it will also help you articulate your learning to others. Be specific when developing your action plan. For example, if you want to learn how to engage others to support key organizing opportunities, using members’ passion and interests, you should seek or request local, state, and national training opportunities or dedicate time to volunteer in an existing campaign.

Goal: Develop a written plan, with clear actions and dates, which increases your chance for completion.

Writing Your Plan

Your plan should list goals, activities, resources needed, dates completed, and reflect and record what you learned about your leadership.

Tip: Throughout the process, use the questions below to help you remain focused and reflect.

Step 5: Post Self-Assessment

After completing the activities listed in your plan (Step 4), complete the self-assessment again to determine your level of growth.

Goal: To develop the habit of reflection, to measure impact and growth, and determine future actions.

Reflect, Recognize, and Redirect

It is likely that your leadership journey will bring challenges and opportunities, causing you to modify your plans. Take the time to celebrate milestones, be prepared to measure growth and look for opportunities to strengthen your leadership.

As you reach milestones, consider using the chart below to measure and set new goals.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>For the competency (ies) you chose, what is the new progression you have reached?</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Reflect on the behaviors for your new Progression Level with the following prompts:</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>What evidence supports that you have moved to this progression level?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>What have you noticed about yourself?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>What have you notice about your influence on others?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>What do you want to keep doing?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>What might you want to do next?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How might you use this new skill to enhance organizational capacity?</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Next Steps: Revisit Step 2, retake the self-assessment, record your score in the “Post Score/Date” column, and follow Steps 3 and 4 again. While you may find that your score is proficient in one or more competencies, leadership development is a journey, rather than a destination. Repeating the steps in this guide allows for reflection and continuous growth.
