Source: NEA calculations based on data from the Education Department Budget Service; National Center for Education Statistics; Office of Head Start; Census Bureau; and Bureau of Labor Statistics. The Senate Appropriations Committee approved a funding bill (S. 1284) for fiscal year 2014 that provided $5.57 billion more for the U.S. Department of Education and Head Start than in 2013 (post-sequester) based on a 302(b) allocation that assumes the replacement of sequestration. Funding levels for programs that appear here loosely follow the Committee's appropriated amounts and are illustrative of additional federal dollars that would be available if sequestration is replaced in 2014.
